As a graduate student in the Health Services Administration program, I found it extremely satisfying to have professors that describe their work experience in class lectures in addition to their teaching expertise. It is rarely this style is found in many other schools.

The Office of Global Education is the place where international students feel welcome and invited. It directs various programs, products and services that strengthen the education of international students as well as our welfare and beyond. At the Office of Global Education, we find a "home away from home" on which we can rely.

The Intensive English Program (IEP) helps international students make progress in language study, which is the necessary groundwork for international academic study. It also helps us adapt to the American culture quickly. The first year in America can be really difficult, but thanks to IEP, my first year was much better than I expected!

*Shi Ying (Lydia)
Jingzhou, China*

Academic classes of Mississippi College primarily focus on practical and real-world education by encouraging students to utilize their knowledge and skills through creative assignments. Professors are really cooperative, intelligent and experienced. They are always ready to extend their knowledge and help us with any difficulties we have.

Mississippi College has given me much more than what I dreamt in India about American education. MC is built on ethics, morals, and values which add ultimate meaning to my education. The university also offers students a peaceful, pleasant, and positive learning environment where we can encounter a community of domestic and international students. Being an MC student has honed my cultural competency and universal brotherhood and has given me an indomitable will to start my new journey in the U.S. with confidence and determination. I am proud to be an MC student!
